Hardly Ever at Home.

When the peddler rang Mr. Bird's door bell the other day Mr. Bird opened the door. Mr. Bird had the baby upon his arm there were four other children at his heels.

"Is the lady of the house in?" asked the peddler.

"Certainly she isn't," replied Bird.

"Where can I see her?"

"Where? Go down to the woman's dress shop; and if she isn't there, go to the jewelry store; and if she isn't there, go to the hall of the association for alleviating the miseries of the Senegambians; and if she isn't there, look for her at the finished school; or at the Ninth ward soup-house; or at the one-legged school; or at the refuge for infirm dogs; or at the hospital for the asthmatic; or at the St. Polyan orphan asylum, where you'll see more paupers and strong-minded women and underclothing for the heathen than you ever saw in the whole course of your life."

"I wanted to sell her a cool-handled hat," said the peddler.

"She'll if you can prove that the naked cannibals in Senegambia are wearing cool-handled hats."

"I'll prove it," said the peddler.

"I'll prove it," said the peddler.

"I'll prove it," said the peddler.

"I'll prove it," said the peddler.

Training a Sheep Dog.

Commence breaking the pup when not older than six months. Pups from well-broken parents and ancestors on both sides of the kennel are most likely to prove sensible and easily trained.

The best place to train the pup is on the road. In driving sheep on a journey, he will learn more in a month than in herding on a range during summer. The first thing is to teach your pup to mind your word; call him by name, and if he doesn't come at once, pinch his ears until he learns prompt obedience. A couple, or more, severe floggings are an almost indispensable part of a pup's training, but be sure he knows for what offense he is being whipped. Let the punishment follow the offense promptly, and if it can't be administered then, don't whip him an hour or two later, or when he has forgotten all about the matter. Nearly all directions to the pup should be given by motion, of the hand in the direction you wish him to go, and always accompany the voice by motion of the hand. After your pup has learned to mind the word and is trained to march back and forth from one side of the flock to the other at the sweep of your hand, commence to teach him to walk up the side of the flock. To do this, make a motion up the side by the hand, and throw your arm out as you would to direct a man beyond the reach of your voice; and call out "away up!" until he gets hold of your meaning. To teach him to go clear around a flock and so turn them toward you, repeat the motion of sending him up the side until he gets partly round the head of the flock and call him down on the opposite side. After he has once learned to go round the flock, a sweep of the arm from the side whence you wish him to start to the other, is the proper motion, accompanied with the cry, "around them!" Always call his name before giving any order, and be sure to make the directing motion with your hand. To teach him to drive behind the flock in whatever direction you wish to go, while leading, or ahead of the flock in a lane, yourself in advance, and if the dog takes to follow you, drive him back, and when he has got to the place, keep an eye on him and sing out occasionally, "drive them up!" To teach him to back whenever you wish, make a tuck with your hand, and get him excited, and then sing out, "back to them!"

What makes a sheep dog a shepherd is the instinct, nature or acquired, which leads him to trot and to go behind stock; and a well-trained animal will take as much pleasure in driving sheep as curs do in following a wagon. Always treat the dog kindly and rarely, and when compelled to whip him, when it is over, pat him on the head to show him you don't bear malice, and to prevent him from sulking.

Why Walk You
Allow a cold, a cough, a sore throat, a system and thus encourage more serious maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles, when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has the greatest effect in the world for the cure of coughs, colds and all lung diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as pure directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your druggist as to the truth of these statements. Large size 75c. Try it and be convinced.

Not Deserving of Pity.
Beggared spendthrifts, to whom money has no exchange value but pleasure.

Persons who will persist in dying by inches with dyspepsia and liver disease, when Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unfailing remedies for these maladies.

Parents who spare the rod and ruin the child. Fast young men and women are generally spoiled children to begin with.

People who marry for money, and find too late that the golden glitter is all moonshine.

Women who defer their duty to their lives, when Pierce's Favorite Prescription with its gently removing those painful weaknesses and impart a healthful tone and strength to the whole system.

People who live beyond their means and find that style and pride, like everything else in this world, unless placed upon a secure foundation, are subject to the law of gravitation.

Invalids who do more toward their disease, by living and sleeping in the low, unventilated rooms of the ordinary house, than the best medicine can accomplish toward recovery when at a moderate expense they can secure all the hygienic and sanitary advantages at the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y. Every physician knows how much recovery depends upon good nursing and the hygienic conditions of the sick room. Chronic diseases are especially subject to these conditions.

Dr. C. W. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills are prepared expressly to cure Sick Headache, Nervous Headache, Dyspepsia, Headache, Neuralgia, Nervousness and Sleeplessness, and will cure any case. Price fifty cents a box, 30 pills, postage free. Sold by all druggists. Office No. 108 N. East at, Baltimore Md.

Tasting The Greenbacks.

The constitutionality of the Legal Tender act, so far as it applies to the issue of Government notes in time of peace having the quality of a legal tender for private debts, is about to be brought to a test in the courts, of course, finally in the Supreme Court of the United States, by an agreement between Mr. S. B. Chittenden, member of Congress for the Brooklyn (N. Y.) district, and General Benjamin F. Butler, each gentlemen agreeing to bear the costs and other expenses on his side incurred in carrying a case through the lower courts and by to and through the Supreme Court.

The correspondence on the subject, as printed in a recent issue of the New York Tribune, forms an agreement to find a real case in which a debtor shall have offered to his creditor, a citizen of a different State, payment of a debt in greenbacks of date since August, 1866, which is the official date of the close of the war. The creditor is to refuse payment and bring suit, and thereupon Mr. Chittenden will bind himself to bear the expenses of the creditor, and General Butler on his side to defend and defray the costs of the debtor, he asserting the right of the Government to issue legal-tender paper money at all times.

Mr. Chittenden says that the currency debates during the first and second sessions of the XLVth Congress convinced him that nothing short of constitutional restraint will save the country from continued and excessive issues of legal-tender in the future, and that it is hopeless to expect the next Congress to relieve the country from this great peril to its renewed prosperity. In his opinion there is a necessity for bringing the question to the final test under the Constitution, by a case on which the Supreme Court will be compelled to decide whether legal-tender paper money in time of peace is constitutional. In seeking to bring such a case before the courts, Mr. Chittenden says he thought it best to seek for a prominent believer in legal-tender notes to support that side. General Butler means to argue the case himself. Senator Edmunds, of Vermont, and Mr. William Allen Butler, of New York, will manage the case for Mr. Chittenden.

Howling For Joy.
The Southern States, a paper published at Oklahoma, Miss., thus whoops over the inauguration of the Democratic congress.

"Yes, thank God! we have captured the capital, and in 1880 our man will walk up the White House steps and take his seat in the presidential chair."

"Then will our glorious triumph be complete."

"Then will we proceed to tear your amendments from the constitution and trample them in the mire."

"Then will we break the shackles you have forged for the free, sovereign and independent commonwealths of the Union."

"Then will we recognize the right of secession—a right that is not dead, but sleeping."

"Then will we decorate the capitol with the pictures of Davis, and Lee, and Stuart, and all glorious leaders of a cause that is not lost, but living still."

"Yes, thank God, we have captured the capitol, and from that college of vantage we propose to rule the republic in a way that will make your Radical laws and your Radical leaders forever odious in America."

Still Howling.
The Oklahoma (Miss.) Southern States last week has the following prophetic editorial representing the feeling of the "Solid South":

"How low has passing it was that the Radical party should breathe a final hiss at our Confederate President as its driving carriage was borne from the senate chamber of the States Union."

Hating truth that is good and pure, and grand and true, it was peculiarly proper that it should have Jefferson Davis with a death-hate."

His history was one long lie and crime. It flung our country into the war; it murdered 600,000 gallant Southerners, like the commonest out-throat that it was."

It gave our homes to the torch, like the common incendiary that it was; it plundered our pockets and coffers, like the common thief that it was; it implored the purest patriots of the North, like the common tyrant that it was; it corrupted a whole generation, like the common pimp that it was."

Finally, with bloody hands and pockets bulging with stolen money, it fell before the wrath of an indignant and outraged peoplehood. But its malignant spirit was strong in death, and while the spirit was strong in death, it managed to utter a farewell blasphemous insult to the South."

Let this be forgotten! It contributes one more shining link to the splendid laurel-crown of glory that circles the brow of our grand old Confederate President. It intensifies the immortal love and honor for our second Washington."

We have captured the capitol, and the name of Jefferson Davis will hereafter be spoken with reverence in its historic halls, while his picture will yet grace and his memory will yet glorify the place forever."

"What's the use of havin' sojers located at the polls?" demanded a Georgia Democrat the other day. And, drawing from his waistband a pair of revolvers, and from his boot-top an other brace, he continued, excitedly: "Ain't we uns'nt got guns enough without callin' on the sojers?"

The best reform in domestic life is without doubt the introduction of Dr. Bull's Syrup. Where it is known no more landanum is given to the Babies.

Recipes.

Bread Making.—Perhaps few will think that anything new can be said about making bread. There are many methods of making this important article widely known and well understood. Yet a careful observer will find there is a large amount of poor bread made; of course much of this is owing to want of care and poor material. For farmers, at least, I think the following method the best, let it try it before they condemn it. Into a pint of scalding new milk stir Indian meal enough to make a thin mush; set in a warm place over night. Over a pint of new milk pour a pint of scalding water; let cool a little, then stir in flour and the mush make a batter; set in a warm place to raise. When light enough it could cut in pans, and when light enough to suit, bake.

Question.—I exceedingly desire some receipts for making meat-loaves, or meat-cheese, as it is sometimes called. Can you furnish any that you have tried, by which inferior pieces of meat can be utilized?

Answer.—Get a few pounds of beef's neck, or such bits of meat as you have in the house, and ox's liver, heart and, if you please, a tongue, as that makes the cheese much finer, and add half a pound of good salt pork. Boil all together till tender. Pick out all grizzled, hard parts, then chop what you have thus selected very fine. Add salt, pepper and such savory herbs as are desirable. The exact proportions cannot be given to suit all and therefore it is better, when all is ready and thoroughly mixed, to take out a spoonful and taste it, adding to the seasoning what is thought necessary. It is usually better refilled if pepper is used freely. Stir all well together and make into a ball. Tie it up strongly in a clean cloth and put it under a hard pressure. If one is so fortunate as to have an old-fashioned cheese press, all away it can be made very useful for such preparations. Leave it under pressure in a cool place for some hours—5 or 6—until firmly pressed into shape. Keep it cool and it will make a fine relish, out in slices, for steaks. A few hard-boiled eggs sliced and laid into this cheese before putting into the press greatly improves it. If properly prepared and put under sufficient pressure it will make a solid loaf.

A real loaf of cheese, made in a similar manner, is still better, we think; but that is a matter of taste.

Or, instead of the liver, etc., bone a loin of veal and stuff with a forcemeat made of finely minced meat, bacon, and some bread crumbs. Beat three eggs and add to the forcemeat; chop or grate a little lemon-peel; add a very little of sweet marjoram; thyme and sage; only a very little of each; salt, pepper and a very little cayenne, and a slight sprinkling of powdered mace and cloves. After the stuffing is carefully put into the loin of veal and securely fastened, tie up the veal in the shape of a large sausage; tie over it this slice of bacon or salt pork; put it into a pot, cover with well seasoned and rich stock; cover up closely and stew gently four hours. Do not let it boil hard at any time, only simmer. When done let it cool in the stock, and when partly cold remove it; put it under a heavy weight for some two or three hours, then glaze with part of the stock in which it was cooked; reduce the rest of the stock to a jelly and pour round the loaf.

This is an excellent loaf or cheese lunch, tea or pie-cakes.—Mrs. Beecher in Christian Union.

Tilden's Twist.
There is a queer report from Washington that the leaders of the Democratic party are uncomfortable in the consciousness that the old man has "got a twist upon them." It is understood that they do not care about running him for President any more, and yet feel that he is bound to run. He proposes not only to run himself, but to run them too, and they do not see how to stop him. Anybody can carry the country; that section would be sold for Beecher if he presented himself with the regular Democratic nomination; the brand of the battle must be borne in New-York; and in view of this fact Mr. Tilden becomes the most horrid embarrassment a political party ever had to put up with. For while it is by no means to be assumed that he could carry his own State, the party which knows his little ways, and has had ample opportunity to judge of his character, seems to have convinced itself that he will not allow New-York to be carried by any other Democrat. And we suspect that the party leaders are pretty nearly right.—Ex.

The Ten-Dollar Certificates.

These certificates were issued April 1st, and all money deposited therefor, is to be employed in retiring United States bonds drawing not less than 5 per cent. The inscriptions are as follows.

[On the face.]
United States Refunding Certificate.
Ten Dollars.

This certifies that the sum of $10 has been deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, under the act of February 26, 1875.

G. W. Scott, Register of the Treasury.

Washington, D. C.
Convertible, with accrued interest at 4 per cent. per annum, into 4 per cent bonds of the United States, issued under the acts of July 14, 1870, and January 20, 1871; upon presentation at the office of the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C., in sums of $50 or multiples thereof.

[On the back.]
Interest on this note will accrue as follows:
For each nine days, or one-tenth of a quarter, one cent.
For each quarter year, 10 cents.
For each entire year, 40 cents.
Let everybody who can raise ten dollars buy one. They will answer every usual demand as currency and, hence, not only reduce the rate of interest of the public debt, but will convert it into a circulating form.

Each one thousand-dollar bond can thus be divided into one hundred ten-dollar pieces and circulation medium be increased accordingly.

This certificate scheme is reversing the policy of McCulloch, which was to convert the whole volume of 7-30 treasury notes into long bonds. The money now holds the 6 per cent. and 5 per cent. bonds will not allow their funds to tie up when these bonds are paid, but will quickly return it to the channels of commerce.

The Only Way.
The only way to cure catarrh is by the use of a cleaning and healing lotion, applied to the inflamed and diseased membrane. Sores and fungations, while affording temporary relief, irritate the affected parts, and excite a more extended inflammation. Besides, no outward applications applications alone can cure catarrh. The disease originates in a vitiated state of the blood, and a thorough alterative course of treatment is necessary to remove it from the system. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy has long been known as an efficient standard remedy for this disease, but, to insure a radical and permanent cure, it should be used in conjunction with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the best vegetable alterative yet discovered. The Discovery cleanses the vitiated blood, while the Catarrh Remedy allays the inflammation and heals the diseased tissues.

The Southern press is unanimous in declaring that if the President votes the appropriation bills which are saddled with a repeal of the election laws, and thus stops the machinery of the Government, the country will visit the Republican party with swift condemnation. The trouble with this opinion is that its authors regard the South as the country. They will find out on election day that it is only a minority of the country.
